HOW TO UNDERSTAND SEX GUIDELINES FOR STUDENTS

By WAYNE J. ANDERSON, Ph.D.

A frank discussion of sex decisions facing present and future college students, and suggested guidelines for resolving them.

Here is the book students have been waiting for, a straightforward, sound discussion of sex. It is written by a man who has a deep concern for today's students. As a professor and student counselor at one of the nation's largest universities, Dr. Anderson comes into daily contact with young people who are seeking help with sexual problems.

The book is written in a candid, brisk, and lively manner. There is no "preaching" or "talking down" to students. Each topic is handled with objectivity, and the questions which students are asking about sex and married love are given answers based upon scientific research, psychological insights, and human values.

STOP FEELING TIRED and START LIVING

By DORA ALBERT

What keeps most people from accomplishing the things they want to do? What makes them "pooped out" nine days out of ten—half-defeated by the time they get out of bed?

In most cases, the author shows, it is because they actually destroy their own energy!

Dora Albert asks Why get tired? When you have explored this question—and found out some rather startling, scientific discoveries about fatigue and human nature—you see how to build up your energy by changing a habit of thinking.
